Cinta memungkinkan kita melihat lebih jauh dari sejarah dan apa yang pernah ada dan mana yang pernah ada. Download library e-books MP3. by Soerjono Soekanto. Headlines Tag: Cylons This past spring, an MSNBC article was titled: "The Superficial Charm of America's New Secret Service Agents". It was about how the Obama administration was changing the staffing of the U.S. Secret Service, which currently has two layers – The Protective Service Detail (PSD) and the Investigative Service (IS). The changes implemented in the spring, would bring a third layer into the mix called the Operational Service. These changes were done in response to budget constraints of the agency. This new layer would consist of agents who were already selected for other positions within the Secret Service. These agents would be able to provide more coverage and resources within their area of work. What I thought this article really failed to point out was that within the Investigative Service (IS) and Operational Service (OS) this would be the first time the Secret Service, in response to budget constraints, would have agents who were hand picked out of another post within the agency. In short, they were no longer selected for the job, they were assigned to it. The current director of the Secret Service is Julia Pierson. In my opinion, she is the only positive note in the current administration. She has had an up close and personal experience in the job as well as a proven track record of success. My hope is that her track record within the agency and her knowledge of what the future will require for the agency will be able to restore credibility in what has been an otherwise very questionable leadership in this agency. Still today, I can't help but wonder when we'll hear a report from the Senate Homeland Security Committee showing what was happening behind the scenes of the alleged Obama administration "get out the vote" calls. Instead of giving a full report of the Obama CITES program, as Senator Cortez Masto has requested, the DHS official she was talking with, confirmed that the agency doesn't have an "electronic voter registration system" as previously reported. A report by the CITES lists over six (6) different programs run by multiple federal agencies which 3da54e8ca3
